Complaint of Failure to Provide Complete Campaign Records for Review

Public Disclosure Commission

Filed Against: Maggie Steenrod

Position Sought: Des Moines City Council Position 1

On September 19, 2005 my wife and I went to Des Moines Councilmember Maggie Steenrod's office to review her 2005 campaign records. At that meeting, the right to fully examine her campaign records was denied to us.

While Councilmember Steenrod was not present during this meeting, she chose to be represented by Des Moines Councilmember Richard Benjamin.

Mr Benjamin handed us a file folder with one side folded under. He told us that we were not permitted to examine the half of the folder which he had folded under. I have no idea what was in that half since we respected his wishes and we did not want to be confrontational.

As I got to the end of the materials that Councilmember Benjamin said we could examine, I saw that there was a checkbook in a pocket attached to the file folder. At that moment, Mr. Benjamin pulled the entire folder out of my hand and said that we had no right to see the checkbook.

When I disagreed, he said I should check with the PDC. Then another male voice from the other side of a cubicle wall said that no checks had been written. I suspect this voice belonged to either Robert Steenrod (Campaign Advisor) or Brian Steenrod (Campaign Treasurer). I have to take that statement on face value since we were denied our right to examine the check register in the checkbook.

I believe these actions denied us of our right to examine Maggie Steenrod's complete records as required by PDC Regulations. Page 11 of the Mini-reporting Manual clearly outlines what records are required to be made available for public review and these materials include the campaign checkbook.

This manual says, "The campaign books include its checkbook register and any ledgers, journals or lists identifying contributors (and the date and amount each has given) as well as books showing any outstanding debts (including loans and orders placed but not yet paid). If these types of books are not kept, the campaign is expected to make available the documents that are customarily used to create these books of account; that is, the receipts, invoices, copies of contribution checks, notes or documents regarding orders placed or loans, etc."

In this circumstance, Des Moines Councilmember Maggie Steenrod is clearly in violation of PDC Regulations. I request that the PDC investigate and take whatever actions are appropriate.

Thank you.
